The course begins with a focus on effective analytical writing in the field of international relations. Students will read compelling analytical essays addressing contemporary global issues and will discuss both the substance and the structure of the arguments. With these essays as models, students will work on their own analytical writing through practice, peer review and rewriting.

Topics that will be reviewed include core concepts of international relations theory, international institutions and NGO's, domestic influences on international relations and conflict.

Class Participation/Attendance 40% of course grade

Students are expected to participate in on-line discussions. Each topic will have at least one discussion board and you will need to comment during the open window, which will correspond with the scheduled topics. The quality of each student's comments and preparedness will be considered for this portion of the grade. While quality is key, it is important that you comment often as the whole goal here is to simulate a discussion.

Article Review 15% of course grade

Students will review an article from the course readings. This is intended to develop your skills in assessing academic work in an efficient and clear manner. I will be looking for the following items:

1. What is the principal thesis in each article?
2. What are the strengths of the arguments made in the article?

3. What are the weaknesses of the arguments made in the article?
4. How would you rate the value of this work?
5. Does the article leave significant unanswered questions?

For this paper you will explore a topic of international relations through a theoretical lens. Topics that could be considered are the following: Iran and Nuclear Sanctions, Women's Rights and Education, The Situation in Yemen, The Situation in Syria and Boko Haram and Nigeria, Policy versus Theory. This list is not exhaustive but should give you an idea concerning the topics that may be included.

Papers should be double spaced, 12pt, Times New Roman with one-inch margins. The review should be 3-4 pages, whereas the second paper should be 5-7 pages, which is not that long, so consider carefully what you include.

Students who receive Financial Aid must resolve/complete any "I" (Incomplete) grades by the end of the term or he/she may be placed on "financial aid probation." If the "I" grade is not resolved/completed by the end of the following term, the student's Financial Aid may be suspended making the student ineligible for further Financial Aid.

Students are responsible for meeting the guidelines of Tuition Assistance and Veterans Assistance. See the education counselor at your local education center for a complete description of your TA or VA requirements.

Academic Integrity and Student Conduct

Academic integrity means honesty and responsibility in scholarship. Academic assignments exist to help students learn; grades exist to show how fully this goal is attained. Therefore all work and all grades should result from the student's own understanding and effort.

Academic misconduct is any act which improperly affects the evaluation of a student's academic performance or achievement. Misconduct occurs when the student either knows or reasonably should know that the act constitutes misconduct. Academic misconduct includes: cheating and using unauthorized materials on examinations and other assignments; improper collaboration, submitting the same assignment for different classes (self-plagiarism); fabrication, forgery, alteration of documents, lying, etc...in order to obtain an academic advantage; assisting others in academic misconduct; attempting to commit academic misconduct; destruction of property, hacking, etc...; intimidation and interference with integrity process; and plagiarism. All students should review the Student's Guide to Academic Integrity at http://integrity.ou.edu/students_guide.html

Students and faculty each have responsibility for maintaining an appropriate learning environment. All students should review policies regarding student conduct at <http://studentconduct.ou.edu/>
