HR 5433-220: Group Counseling in Human Relations

Course Description:

This course focuses on several theories and approaches to group counseling. A systems perspective on group interaction will be presented. This course is two-fold: (1) to acquaint students with the theories and techniques of major approaches to group counseling through didactic presentation; and (2) to encourage integration and practical application through encouragement of participation in various group exercises. Students will have opportunity to participate in group interaction simulations, small group discussions, and exploration of topics, selected to be of relevance to this class. Several activity-based resources will be provided. The course is designed as a training course in group counseling facilitation rather than one of personal therapy and is designed to assist students in developing group facilitation skills.

Assignments, Grading and Due Dates:

Brief Paper- Due the first day of class:

Write a brief paper (4-6 pages) describing at least three groups which have influenced your identity and self-concept. In the paper, describe the ways in which these groups have influenced you, address the norms which governed each group, and how decision making and problem solving was handled in each of these groups. Describe how members dealt with conflict and controversy. This self-awareness paper will count for 15 points.

Daily critiques:

At the end of each day, each student will be asked to write a synopsis and critique (1-3 paragraphs) of the activities of that day. (No critique will be required on the final day of class). The purpose of writing each critique is to help the student evaluate, integrate and synthesize the activities of the day, as well as provide the instructor with feedback about each group session. These critiques will count for 3 points per day (total of 15 points).

Class participation:

Students will be expected to participate in group discussions and class activities. These simulations will aid students in learning about group counseling first hand. Students will be given the opportunity to facilitate the discussion and interaction, to develop skills. Topics to be utilized for these group discussions will be selected by the instructor and the group leader for each day, offering several options. Personal therapy will not be the objective: personal disclosure will not be required. Students' professional roles will be respected and any disclosures in class will be treated as confidential. Class participation will count for 40 points.

Group Proposal:

The major written assignment is a proposal for a group that each student could facilitate. This may be an actual group with which the student is familiar or one which he/she would like to facilitate. The description of the group should include a basic rationale and justification for the group. The group purpose should be discussed briefly. The selected or identified members for the hypothetical group should be discussed, such working mothers, first-time pregnant couples, adolescents, the elderly, military retirees, or any other group attendees. The means for recruiting members, advertising for the group, or accepting referrals to the group should be addressed.

Other relevant factors should be addressed, such as meeting times and frequency, cost of session, policy for missing sessions, rules for expulsion from the group, etc. The proposal should address whether the group is voluntary or mandatory, and if mandatory, what records and reports might be generated regarding attendance and participation. A brief description (1-2 paragraphs) of the focus of each session of the group should be included, considering approximately 6 to 10 sessions of a time-limited group. The proposal should include a method for assessing the effectiveness of the group, during the course of the group and/or at the end of the group. The group proposal paper is due March 23, 2018 and will count for 30 points.

It is expected that you attend all classes and be on time except for excused emergencies.

Excused absences are given for professor mandated activities or legally required activities such as emergencies or military assignments. It is the policy of the University to excuse absences of students that result from religious observances and to provide without penalty for the rescheduling of examinations and additional required class work that may fall on religious holidays. Unavoidable personal emergencies, including (but not limited to) serious illness; delays in getting to class because of accidents, etc.; deaths and funerals, and hazardous road conditions will be excused.

If you are obtaining financial assistance (TA, STAP, FA, VA, Scholarship, etc.) to pay all or part of your tuition cost, you must follow your funding agency/institution's policy regarding "I" (Incomplete) grades unless the timeline is longer than what the University policy allows then you must adhere to the University policy. Students who receive Financial Aid must resolve/complete any "I" (Incomplete) grades by the end of the term or he/she may be placed on "financial aid probation." If the "I" grade is not resolved/completed by the end of the following term, the student's Financial Aid may be suspended making the student ineligible for further Financial Aid.

Students are responsible for meeting the guidelines of Tuition Assistance and Veterans Assistance. See the education counselor at your local education center for a complete description of your TA or VA requirements.

Academic Integrity and Student Conduct

Academic integrity means honesty and responsibility in scholarship. Academic assignments exist to help students learn; grades exist to show how fully this goal is attained. Therefore all work and all grades should result from the student's own understanding and effort.

Academic misconduct is any act which improperly affects the evaluation of a student's academic performance or achievement. Misconduct occurs when the student either knows or reasonably should know that the act constitutes misconduct. Academic misconduct includes: cheating and using unauthorized materials on examinations and other assignments; improper collaboration, submitting the same assignment for different classes (self-plagiarism); fabrication, forgery, alteration of documents, lying, etc...in order to obtain an academic advantage; assisting others in academic misconduct; attempting to commit academic misconduct; destruction of property, hacking, etc...; intimidation and interference with integrity process; and plagiarism. All students should review the Student's Guide to Academic Integrity at http://integrity.ou.edu/students_guide.html

Students and faculty each have responsibility for maintaining an appropriate learning environment. All students should review policies regarding student conduct at <http://studentconduct.ou.edu/>
