EDSC 5523-221: The Science of Learning Theories

Course Description:
Learning is a critical component of adaptive behavior in animals and humans. This course is a study of the theory of human learning and how that theory can be applied to the classroom. As educators can better help students learn if they understand the processes through which student learning takes place, the course will provide an overview of the development of learning theory with opportunities to connect those theories to instruction and assessment. By the end of the course, students will become conversant with basic assumptions, concepts, and principles of learning theory; grasp possible implications of each theory for different instructional settings; create, revise, and begin to use their own personal theory of learning in the design of a curriculum for their future classroom.

Course Objectives:

- Understand the assumptions, concepts, and principals of learning theory throughout history to the present.
- Grasp implications of each theory for different instructional settings.
- Create, revise, and begin to use their own personal theory of learning in the design of a curriculum for their future classroom.

Assignments, Grading, and Due Dates:

Online Discussion Entries - 20%

Write a 600-800 word piece on your theory/theories of learning. This will serve as both an introduction but also a pre-test, a baseline of what we think learning is before we delve into the readings.

I have parsed the reading for the course across the three weeks prior to our face-to-face-meeting. For each set of readings post 6-8 discussion Qs that we will utilize in the discussion of the reading during our face-to-face meetings.

Exit slips - 10%

At the end of each of class section I will ask you to write an exit slip. This will serve as formative assessment for our progress and will lead to further discussion in the following class.

Two-Part Final Paper (70%; 35% each part)

Part one will be a 10 page essay on your theory of learning citing the class reading that most informs your theory. Your theory may also draw from theorists we may not have explored or not in depth (see recommended reading above).

Part two will be a 10 page plan for how you would implement your theory of learning in your future classroom. What would you classroom environment look like? Give a broad overview of a year-long course. You may also choose to include an instructional calendar, a list of resources (texts, videos, etc.). More information on this part of your final paper during our face-to-face meetings.

Class Participation:

You are expected to act professionally during the class, including being prompt to class and staying for the entire class; actively participating in in large and small group discussions and activities; actively and respectfully listening and responding to the comments and questions made by fellow students; thinking deeply about course materials and class conversations; and being prepared for each class session.

POLICIES AND NOTICES

Attendance/Grade Policy

Attendance and participation in interaction, individual assignments, group exercises, simulations, role playing, etc. are valuable aspects of any course because much of the learning comes from discussions in class with other students. It is expected that you attend all classes and be on time except for excused emergencies.

Excused absences are given for professor mandated activities or legally required activities such as emergencies or military assignments. It is the policy of the University to excuse absences of students that result from religious observances and to provide without penalty for the rescheduling of examinations and additional required class work that may fall on religious holidays. Unavoidable personal emergencies, including (but not limited to) serious illness; delays in getting to class because of accidents, etc.; deaths and funerals, and hazardous road conditions will be excused.

If you are obtaining financial assistance (TA, STAP, FA, VA, Scholarship, etc.) to pay all or part of your tuition cost, you must follow your funding agency/institution’s policy regarding “I” (Incomplete) grades unless the timeline is longer than what the University policy allows then you must adhere to the University policy. Students who receive Financial Aid must resolve/complete any “I” (Incomplete) grades by the end of the term or he/she may be placed on “financial aid probation.” If the “I” grade is not resolved/completed by the end of the following term, the student’s Financial Aid may be suspended make the student ineligible for further Financial Aid.

Students are responsible for meeting the guidelines of Tuition Assistance and Veterans Assistance. See the education counselor at your local education center for a complete description of your TA or VA requirements.

Academic Integrity and Student Conduct

Academic integrity means honesty and responsibility in scholarship. Academic assignments exist to help students learn; grades exist to show how fully this goal is attained. Therefore all work and all grades should result from the student's own understanding and effort.

Academic misconduct is any act which improperly affects the evaluation of a student’s academic performance or achievement. Misconduct occurs when the student either knows or reasonably should know that the act constitutes misconduct. Academic misconduct includes: cheating and using unauthorized materials on examinations and other assignments; improper collaboration, submitting the same assignment for different classes (self-plagiarism); fabrication, forgery, alteration of documents, lying, etc…in order to obtain an academic advantage; assisting others in academic misconduct; attempting to commit academic misconduct; destruction of property, hacking, etc…; intimidation and interference with integrity process; and plagiarism. All students should review the Student’s Guide to Academic Integrity at http://integrity.ou.edu/students_guide.html

Students and faculty each have responsibility for maintaining an appropriate learning environment. All students should review policies regarding student conduct at http://studentconduct.ou.edu/
