In this course, we will examine the critical role that communication plays in international political and business relations. Course Objectives:

The objective of this class is to introduce students to the literature pertaining to international communication. This involves learning about the flow of news and information, projections of power, trade and economics, nationalism, globalization, the impact of global technologies, war as a tool of diplomacy, and the development of international bodies. We will investigate the economic issues around post-industrialism, the cultural issues around post-modernism, and the geopolitical issues around post-colonialism as they impact international information flows. We will discuss software and hardware technologies which form international messages and channels. We will explore institutional and organizational entities that enable and require international communication. We will explore different notions of nation and state and the specific properties of communication problems pertaining to these entities, including power differentials, motives, intents, and miscalculations. Finally, we will consider issues of identity and how they are being re-shaped by information flow in a global environment.

Assignments, Grading and Due Dates:

This course follows a seminar format in which discussions are the primary class activity. All assigned readings must be completed prior to the first day of class.

Your grade will be based on your performance on the following three activities:

Short Essay:

This essay will be evaluated according to the depth and scope of ideas expressed, integrated organization, and persuasive eloquence. This paper is due the first night of class. The paper should be written in 4-6 pages, typed, double spaced, Times New Roman 12 font, 1-inch margins, and APA style. The emphasis of the paper should be about some aspect of international communication that you would like to examine in more depth. Students should draw on some or all of the in class readings to articulate their argument. The case study should be an in-depth exploration and critical investigation of the international communication issue based on insights gained from the readings rather than a review or summary of the readings. I do not want to tell you what to write about—only that it should be related to international communication, should be well written and well thought out, and provide a high level of critical analysis. Suggested format includes—introduction, description of international communication topic/experience/observation, explanation of relevant course concepts, application of concepts, conclusion regarding international communication.

Class participation (20%):

During our week we will be spending roughly 30 hours together. I expect all students to participate fully during that time. These classes work best when there is a free exchange of ideas and a robust discussion. Please moderate your participation so that you are neither dominating the discussion nor non-interactive. Students should also be respectful to all members of the class. One recommendation I have that might help with your participation is to begin paying more attention to articles (newspapers, television, internet sources) that relate to International Communication. Print off or cut out the article—consider how it relates to course content—bring it to class—and then share it with the class.

Comprehensive Final Exam (60%):

On Sunday there will be an essay exam designed to assess your recall and understanding of concepts discussed in the course. Although this is subject to change, students will likely be given five essay questions from which they will select three to answer. More information regarding the comprehensive final exam will be distributed during the week of the course

Grading:

This is a letter-graded course: A, B, C, or F. A = 100-90, B = 89-80, C = 79-70, D = 69-60, F = below 60

Notice: Failure to meet assignment due dates could result in a grade of I (Incomplete) and may adversely impact Tuition Assistance and/or Financial Aid.

POLICIES AND NOTICES

Attendance/Grade Policy

Attendance and participation in interaction, individual assignments, group exercises, simulations, role playing, etc. are valuable aspects of any course because much of the learning comes from discussions in class with other students. It is expected that you attend all classes and be on time except for excused emergencies.

Excused absences are given for professor mandated activities or legally required activities such as emergencies or military assignments. It is the policy of the University to excuse absences of students that result from religious observances and to provide without penalty for the rescheduling of examinations and additional required class work that may fall on religious holidays. Unavoidable personal emergencies, including (but not limited to) serious illness; delays in getting to class because of accidents, etc.; deaths and funerals, and hazardous road conditions will be excused.

If you are obtaining financial assistance (TA, STAP, FA, VA, Scholarship, etc.) to pay all or part of your tuition cost, you must follow your funding agency/institution's policy regarding "I" (Incomplete) grades unless the timeline is longer than what the University policy allows then you must adhere to the University policy. Students who receive Financial Aid must resolve/complete any "I" (Incomplete) grades by the end of the term or he/she may be placed on "financial aid probation." If the "I" grade is not resolved/completed by the end of the following term, the student's Financial Aid may be suspended making the student ineligible for further Financial Aid.

Students are responsible for meeting the guidelines of Tuition Assistance and Veterans Assistance. See the education counselor at your local education center for a complete description of your TA or VA requirements.

Academic Integrity and Student Conduct

Academic integrity means honesty and responsibility in scholarship. Academic assignments exist to help students learn; grades exist to show how fully this goal is attained. Therefore all work and all grades should result from the student's own understanding and effort.

Academic misconduct is any act which improperly affects the evaluation of a student's academic performance or achievement. Misconduct occurs when the student either knows or reasonably should know that the act constitutes misconduct. Academic misconduct includes: cheating and using unauthorized materials on examinations and other assignments; improper collaboration, submitting the same assignment for different classes (self-plagiarism); fabrication, forgery, alteration of documents, lying, etc...in order to obtain an academic advantage; assisting others in academic misconduct; attempting to commit academic misconduct; destruction of property, hacking, etc...; intimidation and interference with integrity process; and plagiarism. All students should review the Student's Guide to Academic Integrity at http://integrity.ou.edu/students_guide.html

Students and faculty each have responsibility for maintaining an appropriate learning environment. All students should review policies regarding student conduct at <http://studentconduct.ou.edu/>
